

This work lays the aim to map the spreading of the Pain Centers, to find out their main function and describe modern methods of the chronic pain cure in each region of Czech Republic. The theoretical part shows the question of the pain, its classification and physiology. This part continues by aiming to the chronic and general ache, to the methods of the pain therapy and at last but not least to Pain Centers. The development part compares each Pain Center in few points of view in which the main role have the departments, the medical nurses who work here and the clients who visit these centers. A very important part is the comparing of the used curing methods which lead to a calming or killing of the chronic ache.
